

EDWARD DONBY

Found Guilty of Man-slaughter.

At seven-twenty, last Saturday evening, after a session beginning at four o'clock the same afternoon, the jury in the case of the State vs. Edward Donby, charged with murder in the second degree, returned a verdict of manslaughter.

The trial lasted all week, no court being held, of course, on Wednesday, Decoration Day. The presentation of the State's testimony occupied only one day, closing about noon, Tuesday. The defense and rebuttal lasted until Friday afternoon. Judge Wright, for the state, opened the argument of counsel, and made one of the best pleas ever heard in this court-room. Attorney John C. Pettit, for the defense, took up the rest of the afternoon session. The arguments were continued nearly all day Saturday, closing at 3:40. Judge Martin's charge to the jury was short, but presented to them a concise and clear-cut exposition of the law applying to the case, and especially to the grounds of self-defense.

Donby's case has been a center of interest, largely because of the peculiar circumstances surrounding the transactions themselves, and the personality of the accused. Donby came from Lexington, Kentucky, where he graduated from high school. He is a remarkably intelligent man in appearance, and is apparently deeply religious. The defense was built up in a masterly way, on the theory of justifiable homicide. A very large number of witnesses were examined during the course of the trial, and all the circumstances, with but two exceptions, were in favor of the plea of self-defense. The first of these was the strong probability that both Butts and Bridgewater were shot, once at least, in the back. The garments worn by the two were exhibited in court, and introduced in evidence. The bullet marks were, of course, interpreted differently by the opposing counsel, but the claim of the prosecution undoubtedly had great weight with the jury. The second circumstance was, that each man was shot twice. While this is easily explainable, when it is considered that the scene of the shooting was in darkness, and that Donby had no certain means of knowing the extent to which he had wounded his opponents, still it militated, without question, the theory of self-defense; especially when viewed in connection with the other fact above recited. A strong point in the defendant's favor was the crippled condition of his feet: both are very badly clubbed. While this tended to excite sympathy for him, it had also a distinct and reasonable bearing on the circumstances of the killing. It was manifestly impossible for him to have retreated with any speed, much less to have pursued his alleged assailants.

The prosecutor was assisted in the case by Judge O. W. H. Wright. Messrs. H. E. Sparnon, John C. Pettit and E. O. Pettit were counsel for the defendant.

The case of J. P. Henderson vs. The H. V. Ry. Co., opened in court this morning.

Kessler-Snyder.

The wedding of Mr. T. A. Kessler, of Logan, to Miss Sarah C. Snyder, of Somerset, was celebrated at eight o'clock Tuesday morning, May 29, in Holy Trinity Church, in that city, by Rev. Fr. Lawler. Miss Ella Carney, of Somerset, and Mr. Lawrence Kessler, of Logan, were witnesses of the marriage. Following the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob N. Snyder, where all the day was passed with games and music.

Mr. Kessler, the groom, is one of Logan's best known young business men. He is at present engaged in the grocery business on Gallagher Avenue. The couple will reside in Logan.

Wilson, pastor of the church, was interested in seeing the bills paid. He borrowed a bicycle, speeded to the depot, collared the callow youth just as he was in the act of boarding the train, and walked him back to the Republican office, where he paid up, after "Jewing" the bill down a quarter. He was then marched to the DEMOCRAT-SENTINEL office, and the same formalities gone through with; ditto at the Journal-Gazette office, where also he got a quarter to the good. The reverend gentleman then liberated this bold bad boy, and allowed him to continue his pilgrimage.

This is the same young man who has been hanging around Logan for several weeks, bothering people with fool propositions, and posing as a glass of fashion and mould of form. It was this wise gazabe who remarked with a lofty air, a few days ago, that the Logan public would not know the difference between good and bad music. We understand that at home this blithering imposter is politely tolerated as a necessary evil, and is familiarly known as "Whistling Rufus." Any further orders we get from him will be strictly cash in advance, and our devil will be detailed to watch for petty larcenies.

Court Notes.

Wm. Turvey was awarded $250 by the jury, yesterday morning, in his damage suit against the Hocking Valley Railway Company for $5000, for injuries received at Orbiston in 1904.

H. M. Whitcraft, receiver of the Bowen-Chapman partnership property, was granted an order for private sale of the property, Monday.

A new case recently filed is that of Samuel Smith vs. John Streitz et al, County Commissioners, for an injunction to prevent their intended use of his land and timber for road improvements, without compensation. A temporary restraining order was granted, under bond of $100.

The case of J. P. Henderson vs. The H. V. Ry. Co., opened in court this morning.
